HARRY POTTER AND THE RATS REVENGE

The rat slinked across the shadowed corners of the Gryffindor's common room trying to be as inconspicuous as possible, eavesdropping for news of his sworn enemy. It nestled closer to the wall as a large ginger cat with bowl legs walked by it, followed by a bushy-haired girl carrying a large load of books. Ah... Hermione the smartest of the three that he swore to help destroy. Better to follow her, he thought, for she'll lead him to the others sooner or later.

> Hermione oblivious to the spy, went to Professor Snape's office to get a potion for her cat CrookShanks, who hasn't been feeling well lately (good fortune to the rat that >the cat has a cold or that rat would be kitty-chow.) On the way she passed the girl's bathroom and heard the resident ghost wailing, she hurried past. As she was walking she heard a scraping sound, she turned around quickly but nothing was there, puzzled she started walking again. There it was again, that scraping sound. She turned around quickly, still nothing. Now thoroughly shaken she turned around and started towards Snape's office. All of a sudden something screamed and jumped on her. She dropped all of her books and was about ready to scream when she heard laughing. Harry and Ron sneaked behind her and scared her! Harry sensed that she was about ready to blow a fuse cause he quickly asked her, "Hermione why are you going to Snape's office?" She calmed down a bit when she explained that CrookShanks had a cold. She paused. She heard that scraping sound again.

 Harry and Ron also heard it and whipped around, wands out. In front of them was Professor Snape. "Potter! Weasley! What are you doing down here? Ten points from Gryffindor! Ms.Grangor come to my office so I can give you that cat health-potion."

The rat, seeing Snapes departure sensed that now would be a perfect time to spring his master's plan in action.
